

Faculty Employment Opportunities

Northeastern University School of Nursing invites applications for tenure-track positions from doctorally prepared candidates with teaching experience in adult health, psychiatric mental health, or acute care pediatrics.

The School of Nursing was among the first in the nation to implement a community-based undergraduate curriculum and continues to collaborate with a network of Boston community agencies to provide education and conduct research. We offer BSN, RN to MS, and MS degrees in primary care, pediatrics, critical care, anesthesia, psychiatric mental health, and nursing administration. For Fall 2007 we admitted the first class into our PhD program, which focuses on preparing clinical nurse researchers who study urban and underserved populations.

The School of Nursing is one of three schools, along with the School of Pharmacy and the School of Health Professions, within Bouvé College of Health Sciences. The College provides unique opportunities for interdisciplinary work. It is the home of four centers that provide an array of resources to support faculty research and teaching. The Institute on Urban Health Research is a particular strength within the College. Northeastern University's tradition of experiential education has earned high rankings repeatedly for Internships/Co-ops in "US News and World Report of America's Best Colleges." Northeastern's beautiful campus is situated in the heart of Boston. The Behrakis Health Sciences Building has state-of-the-art classrooms and laboratories for health sciences instruction.

Northeastern University School of Nursing is a dynamic place for continuing your research and academic career. Come join us in Boston, a center of world-renowned health care, culture, and history. Review our website for more details: <http://www.bouve.neu.edu/Nursing>
