The purpose of the University PreHealth Program is to provide resources and advising to members of the Northeastern community in any college or field of study regarding health professional school expectations, preparation requirements, and application processes. Our mission is to facilitate the success of our students and alums and to be a trusted source of competent and caring medical professionals. We work with students who are considering careers in the areas of:

- allopathic medicine
- osteopathic medicine
- dentistry
- optometry
- podiatric medicine
- veterinary medicine

We encourage students to plan and prepare as early as possible in their academic careers in order to select the appropriate coursework and to take advantage of opportunities to explore medicine and participate in biomedical research while studying at Northeastern.

The NU PreHealth website provides access to on-line resources, a calendar of workshops, presentations, and special events, as well as information about how to seek individualized advising, and to network with other PreHealth students, NU alums who are current medical students, and healthcare professionals.

Each student self-enrolls in the program, obtaining a MedAppTrak Account, which is a portfolio of academic and experiential accomplishments and much more. Using the information that students provide, MedAppTrak is an effective tool for advisors to gauge each student’s preparation and progress towards his or her career goal.
