October 11th is National Coming Out Day

Pride Week, which will include National Coming Out Day, will be celebrated on the Northeastern University campus, as well as most other college campuses across the country.

The NU Pride Week committee will collect names for the Inaugural list of Northeastern faculty and staff who are willing to be identified as supporters of an individual's right/need to be himself/herself.

Having an open mind and a supportive attitude are two critical ways to help the lesbian, gay, bi-sexual, transgender, queer, and the ally (LGBTQA) community feel more comfortable at Northeastern University. It is vital that we have role models and mentors who can provide a safe place for all individuals to explore a number of issues.

By agreeing to participate in the list you are giving permission to have your name and corresponding department printed in a full-page ad in the NU News to coincide with National Coming Out Day. The publication of the support list will be instrumental in familiarizing the community with the many allies and friends on the Northeastern University campus.

We deeply appreciate your support of this very important endeavor and have sincere hope the list will grow each year!
