

CALL FOR PAPERS

New England Political Science Association
Portsmouth, NH. April 26-28, 2012

The New England Political Science Association invites proposals for papers and panels to be presented at its 2012 annual meeting at the Sheraton Portsmouth Harborside in Portsmouth, NH. In NEPSA's 63rd year, we continue to welcome a broad array of panel and paper proposals reflecting the various subfields of our discipline. Proposals should be submitted by e-mail, with the proposal in the message text (please do not send attachments), to the relevant section head. Those unsure of the appropriate section may submit to more than one but must inform the relevant section heads of parallel submissions.

NEPSA is also committed to providing a forum for exceptional undergraduate research, and to that end we are reserving three panels (each with a maximum of four papers) for undergraduate student presentations: American Politics, Political Theory, and Comparative Politics / International Relations. Please be advised that only individual paper presentations for undergraduate work will be accepted; we are not accepting submissions of complete undergraduate panels.

The deadline for submissions has been extended to Friday, December 23rd, 2011.

For more information about the conference, please consult the NEPSA website: <http://www.northeastern.edu/nepsa/>.

Except in special situations, individuals are restricted to participation in no more than two panels. If you are on two panels in two different sections, please inform both section heads about your participation with the other section's panel.

Please include the following information in your submission

For individual papers:

Name(s)
Institution(s)
Year Ph.D. received or expected
Title of paper
Abstract

For panels: *

Name of organizer
Institution
Year Ph.D. received or expected
