Sociology and cultural anthropology provide the critical perspective needed for studying the social arrangements in which people live, for understanding how societies function, for studying the conditions under which people change society, and for describing the modes and conditions of cooperation that make social life possible.

Courses in the program examine such areas as gender, race, class, cities, conflict, law and crime, multiculturalism and intercultural relations, technology and the environment, education, media, and the comparative interdisciplinary analyses of societies. Many courses are directly relevant to majors in other fields, including economics, political science, philosophy, literature, criminal justice, and business.

A major in sociology or cultural anthropology helps prepare students for careers in public or private service, including such fields as law, teaching, social work, administration or management, and research. See pages 408–414 for sociology course descriptions and pages 406–408 for cultural anthropology course descriptions.

The study of theatre—as performance, visual expression, text, theory, and history—at Northeastern University balances production theory and practice. In the theatre production laboratory, students (majors and nonmajors) are involved in experiential learning that synthesizes the ideas, theories, and practices studied in the classroom. All theatre majors participate in laboratory and public performances.

A theatre major may petition to enter one of three concentrations: performance, production, or generalist.

Opportunities exist for independent projects, internships, and co-op experiences.

Theatre majors may pursue advanced study in graduate or professional programs, careers as theatre practitioners, or careers in theatre education. See pages 414–417 for course descriptions.

Transferring into the Theatre Major

Acceptance into the major is based on the student meeting the department's criteria for admission and on availability of space in the program.

Academic Progression Standards for the Theatre Major

Students must receive a minimum grade of 2.000 in major courses. The following courses must be taken by the end of the fourth semester (third semester for transfer students): THE U101, THE U120, THE U131, THE U270, THE U300, THE U901, and THE U902.

Failure to meet these standards will result in departmental probation. Three consecutive semesters on probation will result in dismissal from the major.

The visual arts are our oldest form of artistic expression. Today, the ability to understand and use visual language is an essential part of the contemporary world.

The Department of Visual Arts provides students with an introduction to the theory and practice of visual language through course work in the history of the field and through creative activities. Courses are available across the spectrum of the visual arts including art history, painting and drawing, photography, animation, and graphic design. Specific courses are listed and described in another section of this catalog. Cooperative education placements for Department of Visual Arts students include positions in graphic design firms, photography labs and studios, museums, libraries, historical collections, and archives.

The city of Boston, with its superb museums, galleries, cinemas, and public library, is a primary resource for the department. Students are encouraged to take advantage of these resources, and many of the courses meet regularly in the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. In addition, many of Boston's leading artists, photographers, and designers serve as adjunct instructors in the department's studio courses.

The Department of Visual Arts offers two majors: art and graphic design. Within the art major, students may concentrate in photography or animation or pursue a track in art history or general art. The department also offers a number of minor courses of instruction, the details of which are listed below.

Internal Transfer into the Department of Visual Arts

Students already enrolled at the University may apply to transfer into the Department of Visual Arts. Students wishing to transfer should do the following:

- Submit a transfer petition to the chair or head adviser of the department.
- Submit a one-page artist's statement.
- Submit a transcript (minimum requirement for internal transfer is a 2.500 overall GPA).
- Prepare a portfolio of artwork following the instructions for new students on page 4 or make an appointment with a faculty adviser to review actual work.

All materials should be brought to 239 Ryder Hall. For further information regarding admission to the department, consult the Department of Visual Arts Web site: www.art.neu.edu.
