

Teach In Sunday: Reclaiming Our Economy

Open to Everyone — Join the Conversation!

Sunday, November 13th ■ 9:00 am to 4:00 pm
Blackman Auditorium ■ Northeastern University

The purpose of the Teach In is to educate and enlighten about the state of the economy, its impact on individuals and households, the reasons for the long duration of the current Great Recession, and to provide ideas about what can be done to speed economic recovery and enhance economic and social justice.

The Teach In is intended for community members of all ages and walks of life.

The Teach In is being planned by a growing group — initially made up of Northeastern faculty and students — along with partners from the community and other campuses. Faculty and student speakers are being invited from a number of universities and colleges around Boston. Speakers will also include political, civic, community, business and labor leaders.

We invite you to come for the entire day or for portions of it if you cannot stay for the entire day.

SCHEDULE

Moderated by Professors Barry Bluestone and Michael Dukakis

- 9:00 The economy: where are we now?
- 10:45 Who's the system failing?
Who's it working for?
- 12:30 Politics and economics: what went wrong?
- 2:15 What can be done? Reclaiming our economy and our democracy
- 3:45 Wrap-up

Sponsored by the School of Public Policy & Urban Affairs, College of Social Sciences and Humanities, and the Facing our Future Today Public Forum Series at Northeastern University.

Media Sponsor:

The Boston Globe

To see a list of speakers and topics and to RSVP go to www.northeastern.edu/teachin