

Public Health Alert- H1N1 Influenza Information

Updated 5:00pm 5/8/09

While more confirmed cases of H1N1 Influenza in Massachusetts are announced daily, we would like everyone to know that Northeastern University has no reported confirmed cases of the H1N1 Influenza as of today. Northeastern University will keep everyone in our community up to date on possible exposure when applicable.

Health officials continue to send the strong message to keep taking simple steps to keep yourself and others healthy. Wash your hands frequently, cover your cough with a tissue-not into your hands, and if you are sick stay home from work. For an instructional video on hand washing, click here.
