Career Fair FAQs

Question: What is a Career Fair and how can it benefit me as a student?
Answer: A Career Fair provides a student with an opportunity to learn more about particular employers, show interest in potential jobs, and create a connection with recruiters while branding themselves with a variety of organizations. Employers recruit students from all majors and class years (including freshmen and sophomores), recruiting for internships, coops and full time jobs.

TIP: Graduating seniors, don’t put off your job search, some industries recruit in the fall of senior year and in general the job search can take from 4 to 6 months.

Question: Why does a company come to a Career Fair if they do not have any job openings?
Answer: A Career Fair is different from a job fair in that not all employers have employment opportunities. A Career Fair is an opportunity for employers to brand their organization on campus and educate potential applicants on career paths, hiring processes, etc.

Question: Which employers are attending the Career Fair?
Answer: Prior to the Career Fair a searchable list of employers will be on NUcareers. Sort the list by major to learn which companies are interested in speaking with students who are pursuing particular majors. On the day of the Career Fair itself you can download the Career Fair app, Career Fair Plus and click on Northeastern. The app will provide up to date information, including a map and location of employer tables.

Question: Where do I find information about the employers I am interested in meeting with?
Answer: Researching a company will help you ask relevant questions to employers. There are several resources provided by the Department of Employer Engagement & Career Design (EECD) that will help you research the employers attending. Take these steps to gain a comprehensive look at the companies:

- Visit NUcareers for a searchable list of employers registered for the fair.
- Research the companies and visit their websites to learn more about their products, services and employment opportunities for college students.
- Search NUcareers to review the positions companies have posted for Northeastern students. Apply to those you are interested in to have a more productive interaction with the employer at the Career Fair.

Question: How many employers should I be prepared to visit?
Answer: Choose the top 10 companies that you are very interested in learning more about and then select 5 additional companies you would also like to speak to at the fair. Plan to visit your lower priority companies first so you can practice your approach. Then proceed to your “top priority” companies when you’re ready.

Question: What information should be included in my resume for the Career Fair?
Answer: Be sure your resume reflects all of your work experience including internships and co-op positions. You should also list your campus activities and the volunteer opportunities you have participated in recently. If you do not have a resume, make sure to review the Resume section of the Department of Employer Engagement & Career Design (EECD), complete a draft of a resume and submit it to VMock Inc. for additional feedback.

Question: Where can I have my resume reviewed?
Answer: Have your resume critiqued! Northeastern students should take advantage of Drop-Ins. Drop-Ins are 1:30-3:30 every Monday-Friday. Also, make sure to participate in ResumeMakeover opportunities in the Career Studio to have your resumes critiqued by employers from various industries. Visit the Upcoming Events section of the EECD website for a list of participating companies.

Question: Why won’t some employers accept my resume?
Answer: Federal regulations may prevent some employers from accepting your paper resume. In this instance ask the recruiter if you can leave your name and contact information. You must apply online through NUcareers or the company’s website (sometimes both) to be considered for a position.

Question: How do I practice marketing myself to an employer?
Answer: Due to the limited amount of face-time you will have with each employer during the Career Fair, you will have to develop a brief 2-minute “Professional Introduction” which should advertise your skills and experience to a recruiter. Be sure to have specific examples you want to use when you visit a company’s table at the Career Fair. Verbally rehearse your “Professional Introduction” before the fair to make sure your message is clear and concise. Also anticipate interview questions and practice your responses.

Question: What should I know about the Career Fair if I am an International Student?
Answer: Know your visa status beforehand and which jobs you will and will not be eligible for with a US company and identify which participating employers will consider hiring international students. Do not visit companies that say they hire US Citizens or Permanent Residents only. When speaking with employers - be sure to focus on your skills, experiences and interest in the company and not your visa status. It may also help to research which companies have branch offices in your home country.

Question: Does the Department of Employer Engagement & Career Design (EECD) offer any events before the Career Fair as additional preparation?
Answer: The Department of Employer Engagement & Career Design Career (EECD) offers a workshop before the Career Fair where you can get first-hand advice and helpful tips on how to be successful at the Career Fair. Visit the EECD calendar for a schedule of Career Fair preparation workshops and other related events.

Question: What should I wear and what do I bring to the Career Fair?

Answer: Students want to be sure to present a professional image at the Career Fair. Decisions are made more quickly at a career fair than at a regular interview, so your image is crucial.

TIP: Business attire is a must, as are good grooming and hygiene.

Be sure to try on the clothes you intend to wear in advance and make sure all items are cleaned, ironed, and fit appropriately. Here are helpful guidelines:

Question: How do I make a good impression on an employer?

Answer: Turn your cell phone off! Allow yourself enough time to spend at the fair. Career fairs don’t happen that often – so make the most of the opportunity. Try to arrive early if possible since the first hour is usually the slowest. Be independent! Approaching an employer by yourself (vs. with a group of friends) shows that you’re confident, prepared and ready to speak with a recruiter. Make a good impression! Greet the employer and introduce yourself. Be sure to smile, make eye contact and use a firm handshake. Demonstrate your knowledge of the company’s mission including its products and services. Remember to ask the employer if they have any questions for you to answer. Print this How To Make A Winning Impressions At The Career Fair sheet for more information.

Question: What should I avoid doing during the Career Fair?

Answer: Many companies offer students giveaways and free stuff. It’s all right to pick up an item or two, but don’t leave recruiters with the impression that you are shopping for “free gifts.” Remember, you get ONE chance to make a first impression, so make it one that you want employers and recruiters to remember you by! Also, many employers are going to be very popular with students, and the lines may be daunting. If you’re standing in line, don’t be shy to talk to other people. More jobs are filled by networking than any other means.

Question: What steps should I take after the Career Fair?

Answer: During the Career Fair, be sure to get the recruiter’s name and a business card whenever possible. Jot down notes after speaking with a recruiter so you can personalize the thank you notes you send afterward. Once the Career Fair is over, you first will want to get organized: Review your conversations and what you learned from employers. Organize business cards and other company materials. Another important step is to send a thank you to the recruiters you spoke to at the fair (email or snail mail). This reaffirms your interest in the position and company. Things to include in your thank-you note:

- Remember to refer to the date and location of the fair.
- Highlight parts of the conversation you had with the recruiter so it makes it easy for them to remember you.
- Be sure to include a copy of your resume.

In addition to a thank-you note, you will want to call or email employers to ask about the status of the positions and express your continued interest. Sometimes recruiters will collect resumes and keep them on file months after a career fair. That is why following up with them is crucial.
Additional Tips for Freshmen and Sophomores:

Speaking with employers at a Career Fair can seem daunting but don’t let that prevent you from developing an important skill and gathering useful information for your major and career goals.

Freshmen and Sophomores can use the Career Fair to:
- Explore possible internship and co-op opportunities!
- Learn more about potential career paths and interact with employers!
- Start building your professional network!

How a conversation with an employer might go...

Student: Hello, my name is Jennifer Santos. I’m a freshman studying Business Administration and Design with a Concentration in Entrepreneurship and Innovation. I was really excited to get the chance to speak with you here at “Company X” because I know you have a great reputation for collaborating with start-ups in South American countries. Given my ability to speak Spanish fluently and my love for that part of the world, the type of work your company does is really intriguing to me.

Company X: Well, we’re very happy you stopped by to speak with us Jennifer. What were some of the things you wanted to know?

Student: Well, I was wondering what types of skills and abilities your company looks for in potential employees? I was also hoping you might know of any internship or co-op opportunities within your company as it would be an amazing experience to be a part of your team.

Company X: I’d be happy to answer those questions for you, Jennifer ...
