In recent years, the bedrock feminist innovation that separated gender from sex has come under scrutiny. "Theorizing Gender and Sexuality" challenges and expands our understanding of the relationship between biological sex, gendered identities, and sexual "preferences," practices, and life ways. This deeply interdisciplinary course engages students with complex debates about sex, gender, sexuality, and the body that push beyond binary models reliant on a simple "nature/culture" distinction. Focus is placed on the dynamic and variable aspects of sexuality, sex, and gender, within and across cultures, representational forms, and historical periods, analyzing the circumstances in which they undergo significant challenge or transformation. Particular paradigmatic "case studies" will be utilized in an attempt to push at the boundaries of both sex and gender and to invite dialogue about contesting conceptualizations of "the body," "sex," and "gender," particularly as they circulate in specific discourses of feminism and queer theory as well as poststructuralism, ethnic studies, critical race theory, literary theory, and cultural and narrative studies.

This is a reading-intensive, seminar-style discussion course. Students will be expected to complete all assigned readings, participate in leading group discussion (with a partner), write a short keyword paper, review at least 4 consecutive issues of one feminist journal, and write an individually shaped final paper, for which a schedule of proposal, revised proposal, and working bibliography will be required. Grading: discussion leading/keyword presentation (in pairs) 15%, short keyword/journal paper 25% (5 pp.), final paper 60% (20-30 pp.). Students will come into this course with a range of disciplinary emphases and interests and as scholars with expertise in multiple methods, and I hope to work collaboratively with each individual on his or her final project. I also want to make space for you to share relevant materials from your disciplines and research with one another, especially your research for the keyword/journal papers; hence, there is "tba" space in our blackboard readings for each of you to make one additional reading recommendation. Doing so will contribute (positively) to your grade. Criteria for assessing final papers will include: success in meeting the goals of each individual proposal (see prospectus process below); success in engaging one or more of the overarching themes of the course; the project's original contribution to issues raised in the course.

Understanding, assessing, and learning to take advantage of the peer review process is a key component of academic professionalization. Because women's, gender, and sexuality studies are such deeply interdisciplinary fields, issues of peer review can be particularly complex. The keyword/journal short paper assignment is designed to help focus your own analysis of peer-reviewed essays both across a range of journals in the field and through reading a set of consecutive issues of one journal in the field.

Keywords: gender, sex, perform, woman, queer identity, body, race, nation, feeling, family, narrative/story, desire, contract, feminism, activism, digital, global/international, public, lesbian, whiteness, color

Books (all ordered at bookstore unless marked otherwise) (supplementary readings on blackboard)
Gender Trouble, Judith Butler
Bodies that Matter, Butler
My Gender Workbook, Kate Bornstein
Imagining Transgender, David Valentine
"Queer Theory/Gender Theory, Riki Wilchins
Passing & Quicksand, Nella Larsen
Fun Home, Alison Bechdel
An Archive of Feelings, Ann Cvetkovich
Pedagogies of Crossing, Jacqui Alexander
Feminism Without Borders, Chandra Mohanty
Feminism Meets Queer Theory, ed. Elizabeth Weed & Naomi Schor

Class 1 – Introductions
Michelle Goldberg, "What is a Woman?" The New Yorker

Class 2
Love, ed. Rethinking Sex
Bornstein, My Gender Workbook (either edition)
Butler/Rubin, "Sexual Traffic: Interview," in Weed
Blackboard: Gayle Rubin, "The Traffic in Women" and "Thinking Sex: Notes for a Radical Theory of the Politics of Sexuality;" Joan Scott, "Gender: A Useful Category of Historical Analysis" keyword and journal sign-ups

Class 3
Wilchins, Queer Theory, Gender Theory

Class 4
Weed, ed.Feminism Meets Queer Theory
Blackboard: Walters, "From Here to Queer;" special guest essay(s), tba

Class 5
Mohanty, Feminism Without Borders
Blackboard: King, "Producing Sex, Theory, and Culture: Gay/Straight Remappings in Contemporary Feminism;" Kaplan and Grewal, "Transnational Practices and Interdisciplinary Feminist Scholarship: Refiguring Women's and Gender Studies;" special guest essay(s), tba
Class 6
Butler, Gender Trouble
Blackboard: Parker and Sedgwick, "Introduction: Performativity and Performance"

Class 7
Butler, Gender Trouble
Blackboard: Snitow, "A Gender Diary;" Butler, "Critically Queer," Halberstam, "Drag Kings: Masculinity and Performance," from Female Masculinity; special guest essay(s), tba

Paper #1 Due

Class 8
Larsen/Bechdel

Class 9
Alexander
Blackboard: Wiegman, "The Progress of Gender: Whither 'Women'?;" Grewal, "Women's Rights as Human Rights;" special guest essay(s), tba

First draft of final project prospectus due- one page.

Class 10
Butler, Bodies that Matter
Blackboard: from Solomon, Assuming a Body: What is a Body?; Frankenberg, "The Mirage of an Unmarked Whiteness"

Class 11
Valentine
Blackboard: "Transgender/Transsexual Roundtable;" special guest essay(s), tba

Second draft of final project prospectus due: 2 pp., plus 2 pp. annotated bibliography

Class 12
Cvetkovich (selections)

Class 13
Final presentations

All final papers/projects due, in electronic form via email to the instructor.
Note: Your paper must be a word doc. and your email should contain no other attachments. If receipt is not confirmed on Tuesday, do not assume that I have received your paper. Keep back-up copies of this and all work.