With an outstanding response from alumni, parents, friends, corporations and foundations, the success of the Empower campaign has compelled Northeastern to reach even further, to $1.25 billion—a 25 percent increase. Half will come from philanthropy and half from government and industry partnerships.

Faculty are the heart of all great universities, teaching future leaders and performing research that solves global challenges. In this last stage of our campaign, we seek in particular to boost resources for faculty development.

An investment in endowed chairs and professorships helps:

• Attract and retain talented researchers, teachers and mentors
• Ensure that Northeastern has highly qualified faculty in perpetuity
• Build a legacy by advancing a scholar’s work and career successes

Together we must continue supporting gifted, accomplished, and diverse faculty who contribute to Northeastern’s future growth and ability to innovate.

Sincerely,

Rich D’Amore, DMSB’76, and Alan McKim, DMSB’88
Empower Campaign Co-Chairs

Northeastern corporate and benefactor Michael Gries, BA’77, PNT’16, has given much of his time and talent from faculty in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities particularly to focus on developing leaders and encouraging independent and unconventional thinking.

Impressed by professors he taught to daughter, Sarah, SSH’16, Gries is helping advance their work by endowing the Sarah M. Gries Faculty Excellence Award. Each year, the award will recognize an exceptional scholar and provide resources to further research, curricular innovation, and teaching within the college.

> Learn how to advance faculty research

With a gift to the Mosaic Fund, Northeastern faculty member Dan Gregory is helping link student ventures with startups needing skills in fields from accounting to graphic design. Gregory calls Mosaic’s peer-to-peer, student-run service companies the “secret sauce” behind the university’s thriving entrepreneurial culture.

> Read more about Mosaic

The Empower campaign is on the move, logging recent stopovers in Miami, Los Angeles, and San Diego. Guests met President Joseph E. Aoun; explored interactive exhibits; and networked with alumni, parents, students, faculty, and friends.

Stay tuned for news about upcoming campaign events!

With an outstanding response from alumni, parents, friends, corporations and foundations, the success of the Empower campaign has compelled Northeastern to reach even further, to $1.25 billion—a 25 percent increase. Half will come from philanthropy and half from government and industry partnerships.

Faculty are the heart of all great universities, teaching future leaders and performing research that solves global challenges. In this last stage of our campaign, we seek in particular to boost resources for faculty development. We’ve invested in endowed chairs and professorships to:

• Attract and retain talented researchers, teachers, and mentors
• Ensure that Northeastern has highly qualified faculty in perpetuity
• Build a legacy by advancing a scholar’s work and career successes

Together we must continue supporting gifted, accomplished, and diverse faculty who contribute to Northeastern’s future growth and ability to innovate.

Sincerely,

Rich D’Amore, DMSB’76, and Alan McKim, DMSB’88
Empower Campaign Co-Chairs

Northeastern corporate and benefactor Michael Gries, BA’77, PNT’16, has given much of his time and talent from faculty in the College of Social Sciences and Humanities particularly to focus on developing leaders and encouraging independent and unconventional thinking.

Impressed by professors he taught to daughter, Sarah, SSH’16, Gries is helping advance their work by endowing the Sarah M. Gries Faculty Excellence Award. Each year, the award will recognize an exceptional scholar and provide resources to further research, curricular innovation, and teaching within the college.

> Learn how to advance faculty research

With a gift to the Mosaic Fund, Northeastern faculty member Dan Gregory is helping link student ventures with startups needing skills in fields from accounting to graphic design. Gregory calls Mosaic’s peer-to-peer, student-run service companies the “secret sauce” behind the university’s thriving entrepreneurial culture.

> Read more about Mosaic

The Empower campaign is on the move, logging recent stopovers in Miami, Los Angeles, and San Diego. Guests met President Joseph E. Aoun; explored interactive exhibits; and networked with alumni, parents, students, faculty, and friends.

Stay tuned for news about upcoming campaign events!