What is the Presidential Ambassador Program?
Founded in 2013, the Northeastern University Presidential Ambassador Corps represents the Office of the President at designated events and related University activities. Members of this group are highly skilled and experienced student leaders. Through planned interactions with University constituents, Presidential Ambassadors advance public understanding of the University and our students’ role in its growth and success. By sharing the story of their unique Northeastern University experiences, Presidential Ambassadors validate the philanthropic contributions of donors, alumni, friends, faculty, staff and the student body.

What does a Presidential Ambassador Do?
• Assist the Office of the President and University Events Office with event planning and execution.
• Represent Northeastern University at special events on and off campus.
• Engage with alumni, donors and friends of the University about student life and academic experiences.
• Network with distinguished University constituents and community leaders.
• Participate in career-building workshops and trainings.
