The Charles Stuart Story: White Lies and Black Lives

Massachusetts is often heralded as the home of the abolition movement and one of the first states to abolish slavery. Yet the Commonwealth's economy developed in collaboration with states that claimed people as property. This series explores how enslavement and white supremacy shaped the history of Massachusetts and how they continue to shape its present. From the first program "Slavery, Wealth Creation, and Intergenerational Wealth" to the final event "The Charles Stuart Story: White Lies and Black Lives," the series asks us all to understand, acknowledge, and confront racial injustice.
