Legal Scholarship for the Urban Core
From the Ground Up
Edited by Peter Enrich and Rashmi Dyal-Chand

Legal Scholarship for the Urban Core is an important intervention into the ways that academics approach community-building in cities today. The book reveals the many ways that legal knowledge is implicated in struggles for social and economic justice and offers a fresh methodological framework for how scholars engage law on the ground.

Sheila Foster, Georgetown University

The deep and abiding challenges facing the heart of so many cities today fundamentally implicate the legal system, calling for creative, innovative lawyering on many dimensions. Dyal-Chand and Enrich have answered this call with a remarkable collection of legal scholarship that offers important insights into the contemporary community economic development movement and the marginalized communities the movement serves, sounding a clarion call for engagement by the legal academy that could not be timelier.

Nestor Davidson, Fordham University

A solidly researched and important volume, bringing the best of legal scholarship to bear on wicked problems in urban governance. Legal Scholarship for the Urban Core is a blueprint for inclusive prosperity, convening respected scholars who expertly analyze critical problems in today's cities.

Frank Pasquale, University of Maryland Carey School of Law

Northeastern University School of Law FACULTY BOOK FORUM SERIES Join us for a lively discussion.

MONDAY JANUARY 27, 2020
12:00 - 1:30 PM
250 Dockser Hall

Peter Enrich
Professor of Law

Rashmi Dyal-Chand
Professor of Law

Co-sponsored by Northeastern University School of Law’s Faculty Colloquium and Law Library

Co-sponsored by Northeastern University School of Law’s Faculty Colloquium and Law Library

Light refreshments will be served.
northeastern.edu/law/book-forum-series