Legal regimes premised on fear and denial of human interdependency function as literal dead ends. A world divided into a warren of walled cells is not one in which creativity or kindness or life itself may easily flourish. How then to resurrect foundational notions of civility, vulnerability, amnesty and forbearance in times of great intemperance and blinding trauma? This lecture will invite consideration of how we might build more conciliatory exchange into juridical structures and make place for the urgent politics of redemptive reconstitution.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 2019
6 PM • RECEPTION TO FOLLOW
Northeastern University Alumni Center
716 Columbus Avenue, Sixth Floor, Boston

RSVP
northeastern.edu/law/patricia-williams