Northeastern University School of Law is delighted to announce new books by our outstanding faculty.

Professor of Law
Daniel J. Givelber

Not Guilty
Are the Acquitted Innocent?

(Co-authored with Amy S. Farrell, New York University Press, 2012)

“A brilliant book that masterfully debunks the conventional wisdom that those who are charged with crimes in our criminal justice system, even when they are acquitted at trial, are almost certainly guilty. It is a data-driven tour de force.”
— Richard A. Leo
Professor of Law, University of San Francisco; Author of Police Interrogation and American Justice

Professor of Law
James R. Hackney Jr.

Legal Intellectuals in Conversation
Reflections on the Construction of Contemporary American Legal Theory

(New York University Press, 2012)

“With a collection of interviews featuring some of the nation’s most important and incisive legal scholars, Professor Hackney’s book offers new insight into some of the most important debates in legal theory.”
— Richard Ford
George E. Osborne Professor of Law, Stanford Law School

Professor of Law
Daniel S. Medwed

Prosecution Complex
America’s Race to Convict and Its Impact on the Innocent

(New York University Press, 2012)

“Anybody concerned with fairness and examining the role of prosecutors at every stage of our criminal justice process will find this book absorbing, sobering and informative. I strongly recommend it to anyone who is looking at our American legal system and seeking reforms. This is a must read!”
— Charles Ogletree
Jesse Climenko Professor of Law, Harvard Law School

Matthews Distinguished University Professor
Michael Meltsner

Race, Rape, and Injustice
Documenting and Challenging Death Penalty Cases in the Civil Rights Era

(University of Tennessee Press, 2012)

“A personal, accessible and compelling account of a young law student’s experiences on the front lines of the battle for civil rights. Race, Rape and Injustice offers a fascinating look at criminology in its infancy, and its influence on American criminal justice.”
— Evan Mandery
Associate Professor, Department of Criminal Justice, John Jay College; Author of A Wild Justice

Professor of Law
Sonia Elise Rolland

Development at the WTO

(Oxford University Press, 2012)

“This is a clear, cogent, succinct and persuasive account of whether, how and the extent to which the WTO helps promote development — veritably, a marvelous contribution, both scholarly and practical, on a topic of global importance.”
— Raj Bhala
Associate Dean for International and Comparative Law and Rice Distinguished Professor, University of Kansas School of Law

Northeastern University School of Law

www.northeastern.edu/law
Publish and Flourish